DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

1. Applicant's election without traverse of Species A, Figs. 1-7 in the reply filed on 4/17/06 is acknowledged.
2. Claims 2 and 4-6 are withdrawn from further consideration pursuant to 37 CFR 1.142(b) as being drawn to a nonelected species, there being no allowable generic or linking claim. Election was made without traverse in the reply filed on 4/17/06.

Claim Objections

3. Claims 1 and 3 are objected to because of the following informalities: in claim 1 "-like" in lines 8 and 12; and in claim 3, "-like" in line 3. Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

4. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

5. Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Yokota (U.S. Patent 6,220,623).

Regarding claim 1, Yokota discloses an occupant restraint system 1 as in the present invention comprising:

a folded air bag 4,
an inflator 5, and
mounting portions 4a provided longitudinally at a plurality of locations of the folded air bag being fixed along a side portion of a roof (Fig. 3), the air bag being 4 inflated to be deployed in a curtain-like fashion along an inner side of a passenger compartment by gas generated from the inflator 5, wherein the fixing of the folded air bag in a twisted state is prevented by providing a belt-like protruding portion 2A which extends longitudinally along the air bag on an external portion of the air bag.

6. Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Nakajima et al. (U.S. Patent 6,079,732).

Regarding claim 1, Nakajima discloses an occupant restraint system 10 as in the present invention comprising:

a folded air bag 16,
an inflator 14, and
mounting portions 16D provided longitudinally at a plurality of locations of the folded air bag being fixed along a side portion of a roof (Figs. 2, 3), the air bag being 16 inflated to be deployed in a curtain-like fashion along an inner side of a passenger compartment by gas generated from the inflator 14, wherein
the fixing of the folded air bag in a twisted state is prevented by providing a belt-like protruding portion 26A which extends longitudinally along the air bag on an external portion of the air bag.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

7. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

8. Claim 3 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Yokota (U.S. Patent 6,220,623).

Yokota discloses the claimed invention except for the width of the belt-like protruding portion being equal to or greater than 10 mm. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to make the width of the belt-like protruding portion equal to or greater than 10 mm, since it has been held that where the general conditions of a claim are disclosed in the prior art, discovering the optimum or workable ranges involves only routine skill in the art. In re Aller, 105 USPQ 233.

9. Claim 3 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Nakajima et al. (U.S. Patent 6,079,732).

10. Nakajima discloses the claimed invention except for the width of the belt-like protruding portion being equal to or greater than 10 mm. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to make the width of the belt-like protruding portion equal to or greater than 10 mm, since it has been held that where the general conditions of a claim are disclosed in the prior art, discovering the optimum or workable ranges involves only routine skill in the art. In re Aller, 105 USPQ 233.
